We find ourselves once again caught in the throes of the festive season. These days, it feels like you blink, and another Christmas is here. But I'm not complaining! The best place to fall into the Christmas spirit is in a Primary School. The excitement of the children is infectious and decorating the classrooms last week, as well as the Christmas trees arriving, has started to make it all feel real (not to mention Away in a Manager being sung at least 3x a day!).

For those of us who were still waiting for that Christmas Sprit to fully take hold, our annual visit to St Peter's Church certainly did the trick. The Year 6 pupils reenacted the Christmas Story (costumes and all!) with a healthy dose of singing and live music expertly delivered by Lydia and Jamie. It felt like attending a concert, with the added bonus of being in the warm and joyful surroundings of a church decorated for Christmas. We all feel incredibly lucky that the Open the Book Team, members of St Peter's Church, and Jamie and Lydia, are so generous with their time. I also need to say thank you to the army of PTFA adults and wider school volunteers who helped walk the children from the school to the church – that hill is no mean feat!

Without all the brilliant people above who sacrifice their time and energy to support the school, mornings like yesterday would not be possible, and when the children leave school, and look back on their Primary School memories, these are the moments that will stand out to them – that is why they are so special and so important.

Looking ahead, we are excited for the upcoming PTFA film night next Monday, particularly after last year's roaring success. This promises to be another memorable occasion! The PTFA are already busily working away behind the scenes to provide the children with more magical Christmas memories.

Meanwhile, our super choir have been rehearsing for another big highlight of the Christmas calendar. Tonight, they will sing and perform for a large audience at St Andrews Church. They will be joined by the Mevagissey Male and Ladies Voice Choirs. In recent years, we have seen a sharp increase in the number of children wanting to join the school choir. This is brilliant! The rich tradition and success of the Male and Ladies Voice Choirs is so inspiring for our children, and to sing with their role models this evening, is very exciting. Tickets are selling out faster than a Taylor Swift gig, so get yours promptly if you haven't done so already.

If I don't see you at the concert tonight, have a great weekend.
